Five Killed and Two Fatally Injured and Many Houses Destroyed—Two Bridges Carried Away at Greensboro, S. C., and Two Persons Killed at Spartanburg — Cyclone Wrecks Three Houses at Farmville, Va. City of Petersburg Flooded.

Troy, Ala., March 16.—Five persons were killed, two others were perhaps fatally injured, when a hurricane struck Headland, Ala., several miles below Troy. Houses were demolished or otherwise damaged.

Washington, March 16.—One of the worst rain and wind storms in many years swept over the South Atlantic coast states, partially paralyzing railroad traffic, carrying off railroad and highway bridges and causing landslides. At Greensboro, N. C., two persons were carried out. Two persons were killed at Spartanburg. At Farmville, Va., a small cyclone blew down three houses. In Petersburg the city was flooded and trolley traffic was suspended.

Chicago, March 16.—Chicago and the middle west have been in the grip for 24 hours of one of the worst blizzards of the year. Transportation in the city for a time was completely paralyzed, telegraph and telephone service was badly crippled and business demoralized.

Andrews' Attorneys Think Entrapment Plan Good One.

Columbus, O., March 16.—Attorneys for Senator L. R. Andrews, convicted of accepting a bribe of $200 from Frank Harrison Smiley, are preparing to carry the case to the supreme court if his motion for a new trial is overruled by Judge Dillon.

Andrews' attorneys, while not admitting that the senator was guilty of accepting the bribe, contend that there was no evidence to show that he had ever solicited a bribe, and that the state has no right to entrap men free from the suspicion of criminal practices.

Man Caught in Wreckage Dies in Few Hours.

Cadiz, O., March 16.—While a heavy load of baled hay was being hauled over the street it toppled over, carrying two men to the paved street with great violence. Emanuel Mailernee, who was married only a few weeks ago, was so badly injured that he died in a few hours. Harvey Duling was thought to have been instantly killed, but was only slightly injured.

Dies at Ripe Old Age.

East Liverpool, O., March 16.—Mrs. Anna Cochran, 105, the oldest resident of this part of the country, is dead. She was one of a family of 12 children, all of whom lived to be very old.

Operators and Miners Are Far Apart as Ever.

BOTH SIDES MAKE STATEMENTS

Owners of Anthracite Mines Admit Higher Cost of Living, but Declare They Can Not Concede Wage Advance Without Boosting Price of Coal, Which Would Prove Suicidal in Face of Bituminous Competition. Parliament to End British Strike.

New York, March 16.—Although purely formal, late developments in the negotiations of the committee of 10 of the anthracite operators and representatives of the miners were, nevertheless, significant. Each side reasserted its position in much the same terms as have been used before. The representatives of the miners gave out a statement in reply to the last previous statement issued by the operators, firmly refusing to yield an inch of ground.

A statement by the operators was issued in answer to the earlier statement of the miners. The statement, after saying that the mine workers declined to modify their demands, refers to the findings of the strike commission and declares that nothing was advanced in the conferences of 1906 and 1909 to cast doubt upon the wisdom of the award, and no new condition is now brought forward nor have the facts and issues then covered since been changed.

Ready to Consider Suggestion.

The operators, the statement continued, "have always stated, and again assured the mine workers' committee, that they were ready to meet them and to give consideration to any suggestion urged by them."

"While it is conceded," the statement proceeds, "that the cost of living has increased, it must be remembered that the advance in wages awarded to the mine workers by the strike commission was based on the then existing conditions here."

The statement briefly reviews these conditions and concludes as follows: "We again emphasize the statement that it is impossible for the operators to advance wages unless they can in some manner realize from the sale of the coal produced a sum equal to the increase in the wages. It is not possible to increase the price of the steam sizes owing to competition of bituminous coal, and it does not seem fair and there would appear nothing in the condition of the mine workers to warrant the advance in the price to the public."

English Government Will Now Take Hand in Coal Strike.

London, March 16.—The conferences on the coal strike have failed and the negotiations have been broken off. The government has decided therefore to resort to legislation with a view of ending the strike. Official announcements to the foregoing effect were issued.

The statement issued by the government says the premier and his colleagues held separate conferences with the coal owners and miners. Premier Asquith, after detailing at these meetings what had occurred at the various conferences and pointing out that despite all endeavors no agreement had been reached, indicated to both parties what the government deemed in the circumstances to be necessary.

Points to Disaster.

The premier pointed out that the stoppage of mining had now lasted more than a fortnight. It had pro-

It was matter for gratification to Colonel Roosevelt when the direction of his campaign for the presidential nomination was entrusted to Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana. He was the ex-president's choice for this highly important post, but it had been rumored that sickness in his family would make it impossible for him to assume the duties of a pre-convention manager. A warm friendship existed between the colonel and Mr. Dixon before the latter was elected to the senate. The senator is a North Carolinian by birth, but removed to Montana when a very young man and went into politics almost immediately. He has been there ever since and has a reputation for getting pretty nearly any office he wants. He is said to be the most popular man in public life in his state.

BILL PASSED BY LOWER HOUSE

Twenty-Four Republicans Vote With Democrats.

Washington, March 16.—After an exceedingly bitter debate, followed by an exhibition of joyous enthusiasm on the part of Democrats, the Democratic free sugar bill was passed by the house of representatives by a vote of 198 to 163. Twenty-four Republicans voted for the bill and seven Democrats against it. The bill was denounced by Republicans generally and by Democrats from Louisiana and Colorado, but all efforts to throw obstacles in its way were rendered futile.

Representative Ollie James of Kentucky closed the debate for the Democrats. He aroused his party brethren to a high pitch of enthusiasm by reading from speeches made by the late President McKinley and Representative Payne in the house in 1899, in which Messrs. McKinley and Payne urged that sugar be admitted free as a means of reducing the cost of living. Mr. Payne wanted to reply but the Kentucky member refused to yield to him.

Rising in his wrath, Representative Fordney of Michigan, who is an upstart revisionist, arraigned Representative Warburton of Washington, an insurgent Republican, who had announced that he intended to support the measure.

Representative Mondell wanted to amend the bill by postponing the date of its operation until the tariff board had made a report on the sugar schedule. Republican support was limited largely to insurgents.

Abolish Corporal Punishment.

Columbus, O., March 16.—The state board of administration issued an order abolishing all forms of corporal punishment in all penal institutions under its control.

Virginia Feudists Shoot Insulators From Telephone and Telegraph Poles to Cut Off Communication With Outside World—Floyd Allen, Frustrated in Suicide Attempt, Declares He Will Never Enter Prison Alive—Girl Witness Dies.

Hillsville, Va., March 16.—Floyd and Sidney Allen, two of the ring-leaders of the "Allen gang" which slew the judiciary of Carroll county, are heavily guarded in the county jail here. The life of the former is slowly ebbing away as the result of the wounds received in the fray and from a slashed throat self-inflicted with a penknife, while Sidney is seriously wounded as the result of a battle with the Baldwin-Felts detectives.

The detectives arrived in Hillsville early in the day and were sworn in as special constables of the county. They went to the hotel room where Victor Allen was guarding his father, Floyd Allen, and both were placed under arrest without any semblance of a fight. Immediately upon his arrest Floyd Allen drew a penknife and slashed his throat, but officers prevented the carrying out of his intentions. Victor Allen, Cabell Strickland and Byrd Marion are held as witnesses to the crime.

The 20 picked detectives then struck the trail of Sidney Allen and his wife, who later were located at their home in the mountains, several miles from Hillsville. When the detective arrived at the clearing surrounding the house, Allen and his wife opened fire upon the officers, who retreated behind neighboring trees. The fire was returned with accuracy, every window and door in the house being shattered, the detectives shooting and killing Mrs. Allen instantly, while Sidney Allen was so seriously wounded that he surrendered and the officers brought him to the county jail here. The jail is protected by 40 heavily armed citizens and the deputy sheriffs sworn in by Judge W. R. Staple. The report that two detectives were killed in the battle is untrue.

Mann Hears News.

The news of the arrest of Sidney Allen and the death of his wife was communicated to Governor Mann, who earlier in the day had been apprised by Attorney General Williams that Sidney Allen was the man who fired the shot that killed Judge Massie.

The surprise of the day was the announcement of the death of Miss Nancy Elizabeth Ayers, a 19-year-old girl, who was in the courtroom as a witness. No one in Hillsville knew she had been wounded until her death was announced. When she left town for her home she did not know she had been shot, but complained of bruises which she thought she had received in the mad rush from the courtroom. Without a doubt Miss Ayers was shot accidentally.

Detective W. G. Baldwin was advised that the hardware store of J. W. Creed in Mount Airy, N. C., just across the county and state line, had been entered and all his stock of rifles, pistols and ammunition stolen. This work is presumed to have been done by members of the Allen gang or their sympathizers, and it indicates that the remainder of the gang mean to fight to the last ditch.

Attorney General Williams, here to assist in restoring order, advised Governor Mann that the reconvening of the court with Judge Staples on the bench had reassured the terror-stricken people, and Hillsville has relaxed somewhat from the terrible

DOCTOR WILEY

FOR ALL TIME

Washington, March 16.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley resigned from the government service because Secretary of Agriculture Wilson refused to dismiss Dr. F. L. Dunlap, associate chemist, Wiley's antagonist on the pure food board.

Dr. Wiley, in a statement on his retirement, says in part:

"In retiring from this position it seems fitting that I should state briefly the causes which have led me to this step. I desire to say that the fundamental one is that I believe I can find opportunity for better and more effective service to the work which is nearest my heart, namely, the pure food and drug propaganda, as a private citizen than I could any longer do in my late position.

"After a quarter of a century of constant discussion and effort, the bill regulating interstate and foreign commerce in foods and drugs was enacted into law. Almost from the very beginning of the enforcement of this act I discovered that my point of view in regard to it was fundamentally different from that of my superiors in office. For nearly six years there has been a growing feeling in my mind that these differences were irreconcilable and I have been desirous of an official environment in which I saw the fundamental principles of the food and drug act, as they appeared to me, one by one, analyzed and discredited.

"The by one I found that the activities pertaining to the bureau of chemistry were restricted, and various forms of manipulated food products were withdrawn from its control, and I referred either to the act or to the regulations which were not contemplated by the act, and I directly relieved from further

TRAGIC STORY OF ENGINEER

Furnishes the Theme Around
Which Hugh C. Weir Constructs
His Interesting Report of the Fortieth Biennial Convention.

By Hugh C. Weir.

Springfield, O., March 16.

In a heap of splintered wreckage, the engine lay, gasping out its death agonies like some huge, stricken animal. Behind it stretched a blackened, smoldering mound of shattered wood and twisted iron that had been a row of richly appointed cars a half an hour before. And just beyond, the log fence of an adjoining field had been torn away to make room for a long, sheeted line of silent, motionless figures, whose charred features had been mercifully hidden from the averted gaze of the awe-struck crowd of spectators.

Under the engine, lay a man, one of his blue-overalled legs was pinned beneath the down-dressing wreckage—pinned in a death-vise. Under the grime of the caboose, his features were white as the draped sheets in the field beyond. At his shoulders, a rescuing crew were bending steel muscles to the task of lifting the imprisoning wreckage—and with each heave of their shoulders his labored breath came fainter. He raised a trembling hand, and pointed to his pocket. In his coat, the companion who answered the appeal, found a small, thumb-stained, black book.

The eyes of the man under the engine lighted even under their agony as he pushed back the soiled covers, and dropped his eyes to the pages. Once he turned a leaf as the back-staining efforts of the rescuing crew continued. In his face was the shadow of a smile. With a final wrench, the group at the engine leaned forward—and the mass of steel and iron was raised slowly, hesitatingly from the earth. The eyes of the imprisoned man were still on the pages of his little black book. The hands that had darted forward to seize his shoulders paused. There was a smile in his eyes as though the words before them had quickened it into being—but the engineer was dead.

Afterwards, the physicians pronounced those last ten minutes of life a miracle. The most powerful medical stimulant could not have maintained the vital spark that long under the weight of the wreckage. Human power, however desperate, could not have borne the ordeal for the period that the dying man had withstood. What, then, was the secret of his superhuman endurance—the secret that was beyond the explanation of surgical skill? The answer was found in the little black book.

It was a Bible—a forty-cent testament, one of a cheap board edition of thousands which the Young Men's Christian Association distributes to American railroad men every year.

And the engineer, two years before, had borne the blackest reputation on the road—a drunkard, bully, wife-beater, a reveller in vice. A chance copy of the cheap railroad Bible had met his eyes at a psychological moment, and a change in his life was wrought with the suddenness and precision of a lightning stroke. And in a space of a year and a half, his personal efforts had secured the conversion of nearly one hundred of his associates!

Why do I recall this story of the dying engineer and the battered Bible, you ask. In an account of the fortieth biennial Y. M. C. A. convention of Ohio? Because it will introduce to you big, broad-shouldered, quick-sniffing, deep-hearted Charlie Towson—Towson, the national head of the industrial department of the Young Men's Christian Association, who has zig-zagged from the Italian labor camps of the Catskills, where the new, one-hundred-million-dollar aqueduct of New York is being built, to the cotton mills of the South, and northward to the loggers of Michigan, and westward to the railroad crews of the Pacific coast. Towson is a whirlwind from every point of view. He is one of the dynamic powers behind this gathering, which has brought to the historic metropolis of Clark county three hundred of the men who are doing things for men in a man's way, who are teaching and preaching and practicing the gospel of a wholesome, clean, square-lined life, who are putting into operation the new creed of a twentieth century Christianity, which gets away from musty theology and down to a practical, common sense humanology.

Towson, you see, is the man who has charge of this railroad Bible distribution—only one of the many things he has done for the man of the dinner pail and overalls, and Towson is bringing new inspiration to the delegates here who will go back to the four corners of the Buckeye state to sow the seeds of that inspiration. Towson didn't tell this story at the convention, however. I hope that he will later. I heard it from his lips as we walked the winding hill-road of Seaside one autumn afternoon as I waited for a belated suburban train to New York. Afterwards, I wished that the train had been even more belated! Towson is a gold-mine of just such human stories, which get under the crust, you know, and make you realize that life is worth living after all.

The convention here is giving a new angle to the definition of the Y. M. C. A. It is that of brotherhood. The Y. M. C. A. is the greatest world-brotherhood in history.

Thursday evening, Towson sat on a platform, filled with Y. M. C. A. men, at a great railroad banquet of the association. On one side of him were James McCrea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Theodore Vail the famous telegraph magnate; and who do you think were with them? Listen—a fireman, an engineer and I think a brakeman—all joined by one purpose, which had swept away the barriers even of caste and wealth, the most obstinate barrier, after all, that men wrestle with.

The key-note of the present gathering here is inspiration—inspiration and efficiency. You ask what is the inspiration of the Y. M. C. A.? Perhaps, you of Washington, where the association is just thrusting itself above the civic horizon, may even ask what the Y. M. C. A. is?

The public knows, of course, that it is an institution that maintains a gymnasium and a swimming pool. It also knows that it holds religious meetings. But what is the connection? Why the swimming pool and religious meeting by the same organization? The answer is simple enough—and it's very simplicity marks the greatest strength of the

Institution—WELL-ROUNDED MEN

You see, the Y. M. C. A. not only aims to reach the spiritual wants—but the bodily wants, and the mental wants. It teaches men to develop strong bodies, and keep them strong and clean. It points the way to strong minds—through the beacon of its night schools, which it has erected on the cross-roads of life. And by the way, the night schools of the Washington Y. M. C. A. will be a leading feature. And it shows those men who have grown cold to the call of religion the inspiration and the practical benefit of a sane, wholesome, optimistic gospel, preached in man-fashion. In other words, it not only expounds but applies Christianity. It not only tells men what to do but how to do. It deals with deeds, not creeds.

So much for the benefit to the individual, what is its benefit to the community? Multiply one shop man, or one clerk, or one young chap still in his teens by five hundred. Can you reckon the power which an organization like this can wield collectively? Can you reckon the benefit to business conditions, which this gospel of broader efficiency should produce as a substitute for squandered lives and wasted energy? Can you reckon the benefit in moral conditions which this new definition of clean-living should effect? Can you reckon the impetus in civic conditions which the spur to good-living and good government should create? The Y. M. C. A. is not only a man-builder. It is a community builder.

Never was this fact more vividly sketched than in the opening day's sessions of the state convention, climaxed with a banquet at the Commercial club in the evening, such as the city has seldom witnessed. There were five hundred plates—but the numerical feature after all was the smallest. The biggest men of the state were there—and the smallest, men who rank high in the public eye brushed elbows with men, whose humble spheres will probably never be known beyond their narrow grooves. John L. Zimmerman, O. E. Hynes, Paul Morton, and a dozen of the other civic leaders of Springfield and Dayton—turning the two largest contingents—met and greeted the humblest working man, and it is to be doubted which received the deepest benefit in this gospel of a new brotherhood—the brotherhood which is soon to make itself felt in the developing of a bigger and a better and cleaner more progressive communities and Washington C. H. is one of them.

Many Applicants For Postal Job

The announcement that a civil service examination would be held in this city on March 16th, for the purpose of obtaining persons eligible for mail clerk and city carrier, has brought response in the shape of 16 applicants for the positions.

The examinations were held in Memorial Hall under the direction of the local postoffice officials. It will probably be two weeks before it is known who the successful applicants are.

ST. PATRICK'S MASQUERADE

The Red Men's hall presented a gay scene Friday night when the daughters of Pocahontas celebrated the coming St. Patrick's day with a masquerade.

A motley array of maskers including Indian braves and maidens, "Uncle Josh" and his family, clowns, devils, "Black Beauty," cowboys, cops, veiled ladies, "night" and "morning," Topsy and many other comical make-ups, with several "wearing of the green," kept a crowd of over two hundred highly entertained with their funny costumes and antics. A hundred maskers formed in the grand march, Miss Golda Ryan, pianist. A horsemanship play, "Why Girls Leave Home," added to the fun and light refreshments were served.

Everybody had a jolly time and were indebted to the committee, Miss Maude Burns, Mrs. Nina Miller, Mrs. Oliver, Messrs. Lorin Perry and Harry Wood.

TRAGIC STORY OF ENGINEER

Furnishes the Theme Around Which Hugh C. Weir Constructs His Interesting Report of the Fortieth Biennial Convention.

By Hugh C. Weir.
Springfield, O., March 16.

In a heap of splintered wreckage, the engine lay, gasping out its death agonies like some huge, stricken animal. Behind it stretched a blackened, smouldering mound of shattered wood and twisted iron that had been a row of tightly appointed cars a half an hour before. And just beyond, the log fence of an adjoining field had been torn away to make room for a long, sheeted line of silent, motionless figures, whose charred features had been mercifully hidden from the averted gaze of the awe-struck crowd of spectators.

Under the engine, lay a man, one of his blue-overalled legs was pinned beneath the down-pressing wreckage—pinned in a death-vise. Under the grime of the caboose, his features were white as the draped sheets in the field beyond. At his shoulders, a rescuing crew were bending steel muscles to the task of lifting the imprisoning wreckage—and with each heave of their shoulders his labored breath came fainter. He raised a trembling hand, and pointed to his pocket. In his coat, the companion who answered the appeal, found a small, thumb-stained, black book.

The eyes of the man under the engine lighted even under their agony as he pushed back the soiled covers, and dropped his eyes to the pages. Once he turned a leaf as the back-straining efforts of the rescuing crew continued. In his face was the shadow of a smile. With a final wrench, the group at the engine leaned forward—and the mass of steel and iron was raised slowly, hesitatingly from the earth. The eyes of the imprisoned man were still on the pages of his little black book. The hands that had darted forward to seize his shoulders paused. There was a smile in his eyes as though the words before them had quickened it into being—but the engineer was dead.

Afterwards, the physicians pronounced those last ten minutes of life a miracle. The most powerful medical stimulant could not have maintained the vital spark that long under the weight of the wreckage. Human power, however desperate, could not have borne the ordeal for the period that the dying man had withstood. What, then, was the secret of his superhuman endurance—the secret that was beyond the explanation of surgical skill? The answer was found in the little black book.

It was a Bible—a forty-cent testament, one of a cheap board edition of thousands which the Young Men's Christian Association distributes to American railroad men every year.

And the engineer, two years before, had borne the blackest reputation on the road—a drunkard, bully, wife-beater, a reveller in vice. A chance copy of the cheap railroad Bible had met his eyes at a psychological moment, and a change in his life was wrought with the suddenness and precision of a lightning stroke. And in a space of a year and a half, his personal efforts had secured the conversion of nearly one hundred of his associates!

Why do I recall this story of the dying engineer and the battered Bible, you ask, in an account of the fortieth biennial Y. M. C. A. convention of Ohio? Because it will introduce to you big, broad-shouldered, quick-smiling, deep-hearted Charlie Towson—Towson, the national head of the industrial department of the Young Men's Christian Association, who has zig-zagged from the Italian labor camps of the Catskills, where the new, one-hundred-million-dollar aqueduct of New York is being built, to the cotton mills of the South, and northward to the loggers of Michigan, and westward to the railroad crews of the Pacific coast. Towson is a whirlwind from every point of view. He is one of the dynamic powers behind this gathering, which has brought to the historic metropolis of Clark county three hundred of the men who are doing things for men in a man's way, who are teaching and preaching and practicing the gospel of a wholesome, clean, square-lined life, who are putting into operation the new creed of a twentieth century Christianity, which gets away from musty theology and down to a practical, common sense humanology.

Towson, you see, is the man who has charge of this railroad Bible distribution—only one of the many things he has done for the man of the dinner pail and overalls, and Towson is bringing new inspiration to the delegates here who will go back to the four corners of the Buckeye state to sow the seeds of that inspiration. Towson didn't tell this story at the convention, however. I hope that he will later. I heard it from his lips as we walked the winding hill-road of Scarsdale one autumn afternoon as I waited for a belated suburban train to New York. Afterwards, I wished that the train had been even more belated! Towson is a gold-mine of just such human stories, which get under the crust, you know, and make you realize that life is worth living after all.

The convention here is giving a new angle to the definition of the Y. M. C. A. It is that of brotherhood. The Y. M. C. A. is the greatest world-brotherhood in history.

Thursday evening, Towson sat on a platform, filled with Y. M. C. A. men, at a great railroad banquet of the association. On one side of him were James McCrea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Theodore Vail the famous telegraph magnate; and who do you think were with them? Listen—a fireman, an engineer and I think a brakeman—all joined by one purpose, which had swept away the barriers even of caste and wealth, the most obstinate barrier, after all, that men wrestle with.

The key-note of the present gathering here is inspiration—inspiration and efficiency. You ask what is the inspiration of the Y. M. C. A.? Perhaps, you of Washington, where the association is just thrusting itself above the civic horizon, may even ask what the Y. M. C. A. is?

The public knows, of course, that it is an institution that maintains a gymnasium and a swimming pool. It also knows that it holds religious meetings. But what is the connection? Why the swimming pool and religious meeting by the same organization? The answer is simple enough—and it's very simplicity marks the greatest strength of the institution—WELL-ROUNDED MEN. You see, the Y. M. C. A. not only aims to reach the spiritual wants—but the bodily wants, and the mental wants. It teaches men to develop strong bodies, and keep them strong and clean. It points the way to strong minds—through the beacon of its night schools, which it has erected on the cross-roads of life. And by the way, the night schools of the Washington Y. M. C. A. will be a leading feature. And it shows those men who have grown cold to the call of religion the inspiration and the practical benefit of a sane, wholesome, optimistic gospel, preached man-fashion. In other words, it not only expounds but applies Christianity. It not only tells men what to do but how to do. It deals with deeds, not creeds.

So much for the benefit to the individual, what is its benefit to the community? Multiply one shop man, or one clerk, or one young chap still in his teens by five hundred. Can you reckon the power which an organization like this can wield collectively? Can you reckon the benefit to business conditions, which this gospel of broader efficiency should produce as a substitute for squandered lives and wasted energy? Can you reckon the benefit in moral conditions which this new definition of clean-living should effect? Can you reckon the impetus in civic conditions which the spur to good-living and good government should create? The Y. M. C. A. is not only a man-builder. It is a community builder.

Never was this fact more vividly sketched than in the opening day's sessions of the state convention, climaxed with a banquet at the Commercial club in the evening, such as the city has seldom witnessed. There were five hundred plates—but the numerical feature after all was the smallest. The biggest men of the state were there—and the smallest, men who rank high in the public eye brushed elbows with men, whose humble spheres will probably never be known beyond their narrow grooves. John L. Zimmerman, O. F. Hayes, Paul Morton, and a dozen of the other civic leaders of Springfield and Dayton—furnishing the two largest contingents—met and greeted the humblest working man, and it is to be doubted which received the deepest benefit in this gospel of a new brotherhood—the brotherhood which is soon to make itself felt in the developing of a bigger and a better and cleaner more progressive communities and Washington C. H. is one of them.

Many Applicants For Postal Job

The announcement that a civil service examination would be held in this city on March 16th, for the purpose of obtaining persons eligible for mail clerk and city carrier, has brought response in the shape of 16 applicants for the positions.

The examinations were held in Memorial Hall under the direction of the local postoffice officials. It will probably be two weeks before it is known who the successful applicants are.

ST. PATRICK'S MASQUERADE.

The Red Men's hall presented a gay scene Friday night when the Daughters of Pocahontas celebrated the coming St. Patrick's day with a masquerade.

A motley array of maskers including Indian braves and maidens, "Uncle Josh" and his family, clowns, devils, "Black Beauty," cowboys, cops, rolled ladies, "night" and "morning," Topsy and many other comical make-ups, with several "wearing of the green," kept a crowd of over two hundred highly entertained with their funny costumes and antics. A hundred maskers formed in the grand march. Miss Golda Ryan, pianist. A baroque play, "Why Girls Leave Home," added to the fun and light refreshments were served.

Everybody had a jolly time and were indebted to the committee, Miss Maude Burns, Mrs. Nina Miller, Mrs. Oliver, Messrs. Lorin Perry and Harry Wood.

Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY.

On Sunday morning the majority of the ministers of the town and county, will take as the theme for their sermon, "The Y. M. C. A."

The chicken pie supper at the Presbyterian church Friday night drew a large crowd and passed off very successfully.

The basement dining room, brightly lighted and with its long tables effectively decorated with nodding carnations or blooming potted plants, presented an inviting scene, and the delicious hot supper was served most generously by the ladies of the church.

Mr. T. P. Sites furnished the coffee and napkins. It was "Battleship coffee" and pronounced by connoisseurs as mighty good.

Upstairs the Sunday school room was converted into a reception room, and prettily garnished with beautiful carnations, sent by Mrs. Buck from the floral gardens with her compliments.

Here the girls had a candy table and the dainty home-made bon bons went like hot cakes, many unable to get even a taste.

The auditorium of the church was also placed at the disposal of the guests and informal sociability was thoroughly enjoyed by those who lingered after the supper.

This evening the usual services will be conducted. The subject of the sermon will be "The Lord's Supper."

There will be a special sermon preached by the Rev. Missionary at the 9:30 service tomorrow morning. He will take for his subject, "Why Men Do Not Believe."

The Mission will come to a close tomorrow evening with the 7:30 service. At that service the closing sermon of the Mission will be preached, at the end of which there will be a solemn renewing of baptismal vows. The papal blessing will also be imparted.

Non-Catholics will find the subjects of the sermon this evening and tomorrow morning especially interesting and they are tendered a hearty invitation.

The service tomorrow evening promises to be very impressive and a large attendance is expected.

In the death of Dr. J. W. Hughey, the people of this community have suffered a loss which leaves vacant a place difficult to fill.

In the many years Dr. Hughey has practiced his profession among the people of this community, he has made a wide circle of acquaintances and has, in the honest and faithful adherence to the general practice of his chosen profession served early and late, in joy and sorrow, a large number of people who were closely bound to him by those strongest of ties, love and gratitude.

The life of the country doctor, even under the most favorable circumstances is a hard one, and Dr. Hughey in the years which he has devoted to the conscientious service of others, was compelled to call upon his reserve strength and as a consequence became, comparatively early in life, enfeebled in health—old long before his years demanded it of him. For several years he has bravely battled against the inevitable end and during all the time, ministering to the limit of his physical strength, to the sufferings of others.

Dr. Hughey was a deservedly popular man and his loss is a public one which the people of this community feel keenly.

Few of the many who called upon that pleasant man, now gone to his reward, realized the suffering he endured in their service. Always uncomplaining, his pleasant smile was not banished nor was his sunny disposition, in itself the best of medicine for any patient in almost any sick room, in any degree darkened by his own misfortune.

"Prompt at Duty's call" the good doctor has uncomplainingly answered the last call and has started on his last long visit.

If there is reward hereafter for the ones of whom it may be truthfully said, "Well done thou good and faithful servant" it, beyond the peradventure of doubt, awaits the conscientious country doctor, a class of public benefactors, of which Dr. J. W. Hughey was an ideal type.

He was a public servant of the higher kind for whose great and unselfish service, mankind is impotent to furnish any commensurate reward.

AN AWFUL TRAGEDY.

The enormity of the awful tragedy at Hillsville, Virginia, on last Thursday, which cost the county judge, the prosecuting attorney and the sheriff their lives, has shocked the nation.

To secure the release of a young mountaineer who had just been sentenced to serve one year in jail because he himself had set at defiance the solemn orders and decrees of the court and aided a convicted friend to escape the punishment which had been meted out to him, a gang of relatives and friends from the wild mountain region set at defiance the laws of the great commonwealth of Virginia and murdered three officials in cold blood.

It is perhaps the first time in the history of this or any other civilized nation that the whole judicial machinery of a community has been wiped out of existence by desperadoes and the nation stands aghast.

People outside the wild region in which the crime occurred cannot yet realize that such an act was possible.

The law-abiding people of the community in which the tragedy was enacted were quick to recover from the shock and have organized armed posses to run down the murderers who have taken refuge in the mountain fastnesses.

Without doubt, sooner or later, the offenders against civilization will be apprehended and a full settlement demanded of them, but the awful cost of it all, not the least item in which is the realization that such a crime is possible in this country and in this age, cannot be balanced, even with the lives of the guilty men.

When A Girl Is Old Enough To Marry

By Mrs. W. H. Waller, San Francisco

When a girl has made an exhaustive study of every phase of the subject, completely appreciates the word duty in all its fullness, and is willing to live up to this, then, and not till then, is she eligible to the momentous duties of wifehood and motherhood, be she twenty or thirty.

Above all things girls should be trained to be home makers. Good cooking a specialty. A complete study of the care of children should be made.

A man is expected to be able to support a wife and maintain a home before he marries.

A girl should be competent to preside over that home intelligently, economically and helpfully. She should be trained to be a thorough helpmate.

Let her begin as an apprentice to master all that pertains to home making at twenty and at twenty-five she will not only be a competent housekeeper, but a husband keeper at the same time, these two things being almost synonymous.

Poetry—Today

THE WAY OF THE WORLD.

When they praise they praise in whispers, and you scarce can hear the sound;

When they boost they always boost when you're alone;

But when the man who's knocking you makes his unwelcome round

You can bet he's always got a megaphone.

When you're here they never see you, and a nod's the best you get; They don't care if you are down to plain dry bread.

But while they wouldn't tell you that alive you're worth a bet.

You can gamble they'll be there when you are dead.

Oh, why is it that the world will snub a man when he is here. When he could enjoy the boundless help that's ours?

And when he's dead we like to see displayed around his bier

The appreciative words we send with flowers?

FARMER GAYNOR UPSETS THINGS

Copyright by Brown Brothers.

The Old Order In New York Undergoes a Great Change—People Regain Their Rights—Some of the Methods by Which William J. Gaynor Has Ended the Rule of "the System" and Established Honest Government. The People Have Come to Love Him and Speak of Him as a Second Lincoln—A Mayor Who Is Doing Big Things in a Quiet Way.

NEW YORKERS used to smile at farmers with an air of indulgent superiority, but they are not doing nearly so much of it now since they have become well acquainted with Mayor William J. Gaynor. He is the first farmer chief executive the city has ever had, or at least the only one it has had for a hundred years or more, and he has given the people a new view of the possibilities of city life and of the capabilities of the man from the country.

Before him the city hall was occupied in turn by merchants, lawyers and politicians, who differed from each other only in name. They were either born in the city or had lived there so long that they had lost all of their individuality and become typical "Noo Yawkers." They talked in the same way, wore the same fashionable clothes and could be counted on to say the right thing on all occasions. And that was all.

Mr. Gaynor, on the other hand, is the most unconventional man with whom New York has been intimately associated for generations. He brought with him the fresh air of the wide out of doors, along with a distinctive and decided personality. He was born and brought up on a farm, has always lived on a farm, for most of the year at least, and is proud of the fact that he is a good farmer. He believes that a spade is a spade and a thief a thief, no matter what his name or position.

He does big things in a quiet way without fuss or foolishness, and, what is even more novel, he does them without any thought of future reward be-has done, he has brought the city's government back to Jeffersonian simplicity.

In former days the door to the mayor's office was a portal through which only the mighty might pass. Now it is open to every citizen. The weak and the poor and the oppressed are as welcome as the rich. Mr. Gaynor sees three or four times as many people at his office every day as were received by his predecessor. No one who has a reasonable excuse for seeing him is denied admittance, and no one goes away unsatisfied. To those with complaints of injustice—and there were many of them at first, but their number is constantly decreasing under the general correction of abuses—the mayor inclines a sympathetic ear, and such action as is needed is taken in the vigorous Gaynor fashion.

The complaint of two peaceable citizens who had been roughly handled by special officers without any reason led to an investigation which developed the fact that there were 4,000 special policemen in New York who, though armed with full police powers, were employed by firms and corporations. They naturally took orders from those who paid them their wages without regard to the rights of the people with whom they interfered. Frequently they went beyond the law. The result of this discovery was that by the mayor's order all of these special officers were immediately stripped of their authority.

Early one morning as a merchant was walking downtown to open his store he said something that annoyed

yond the satisfaction which comes from a work well done. His judgments are based on what he believes to be right, and only that. He is such an unusual mayor that New Yorkers didn't quite know what to think of him at first, but since they have had an opportunity to watch and study him they have come to love him, in much the same way that Lincoln was loved. He is often spoken of, in fact, as a second emancipator, and not without reason, for, to a much greater extent than even the most optimistic citizen dared hope for up to a year or two ago, he has freed New York from the fetters of "The System."

He doesn't look a great deal like Lincoln—this spare, quiet, gray man of medium height—but he's of Lincolnian stature in other ways. He makes the same appeal to the popular imagination, and he stands for the same thing that Lincoln typified—trust in the Almighty and in the Almighty's people. And he has a whole lot of old fashioned notions, of the kind that go with rag carpets and husking bees and harvest home festivals.

In the two years that he has occupied the city hall he has done so many things which New Yorkers had come to regard as impossible that the telling of them would make a story as long as the moral law, which comparison, it may be said, is no mere figure of speech. For one thing, and perhaps it is really the biggest thing he a policeman and was arrested on a charge of spitting on the sidewalk and dragged off to court. Not only was he denied bail, but the police refused to allow him to communicate with his clerks or send them the keys to the store. When his case finally was reached he was dismissed in short order, but it was nearly noon before he got to his store, where sixteen clerks were waiting around outside of the locked doors, not knowing what had happened. As a consequence of this and other similar injustices, which were brought to the mayor's attention, the police were instructed that instead of making arrests for minor offenses, in cases where the defendant could establish his identity and residence they must merely serve him with a summons, directing him to appear in court at a reasonable hour the next day. The working out of this system showed a decrease last year of 60,000 useless arrests for trivial causes.

These are merely illustrations of the simple, but effective, methods through which Mayor Gaynor is re-establishing the rights of the citizen, which he holds to be paramount and sacred, so long as he keeps within the law, and even when he goes beyond the law he has certain rights which must be respected. The people have learned that under his administration every citizen will get a square deal—nothing more and nothing less, no matter what his station.

LONG ON CHIEF

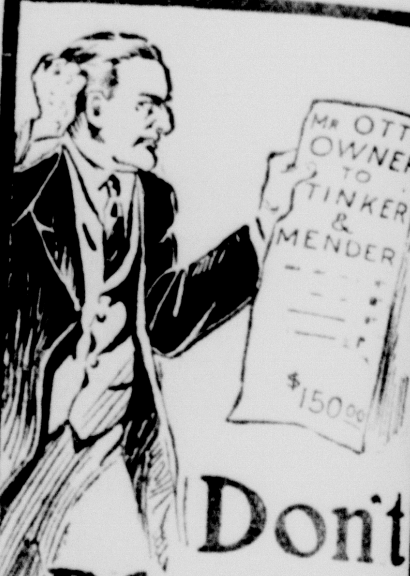

Columbus Police Squabble Into Courts.

Columbus, O., March 16.—Columbus now has two chiefs of police. Of Police Carter, Republican, was installed as head of the department by the civil service commission. Harry E. French, who has been chief, was made chief by the Democrat in a written appointment, made about an hour before the civil service commission finding was given out.

This new move on the part of the administration is taken to indicate that the mayor will enter fight to get back as head of the police department. It is believed that Carter will now have to resign his position through a court decision.

The civil service commission report said that the chief preferred against Carter by Mayor Karb had not been sustained, that the evidence showed that chief had been guilty of errors of judgment and docketed him from the date of suspension to date of reinstatement.

Before him the city hall was occupied in turn by merchants, lawyers and politicians, who differed from each other only in name. They were either born in the city or had lived there so long that they had lost all of their individuality and become typical "New Yorkers." They talked in the same way, wore the same fashionable clothes and could be counted on to say the right thing on all occasions. And that was all.

Mr. Gaynor, on the other hand, is the most unconventional man with whom New York has been intimately associated for generations. He brought with him the fresh air of the wide out of doors, along with a distinctive and decided personality. He was born and brought up on a farm, has always lived on a farm, and is proud of the fact that he is a good farmer. He believes that a spade is a spade and a thief a thief, no matter what his name or position.

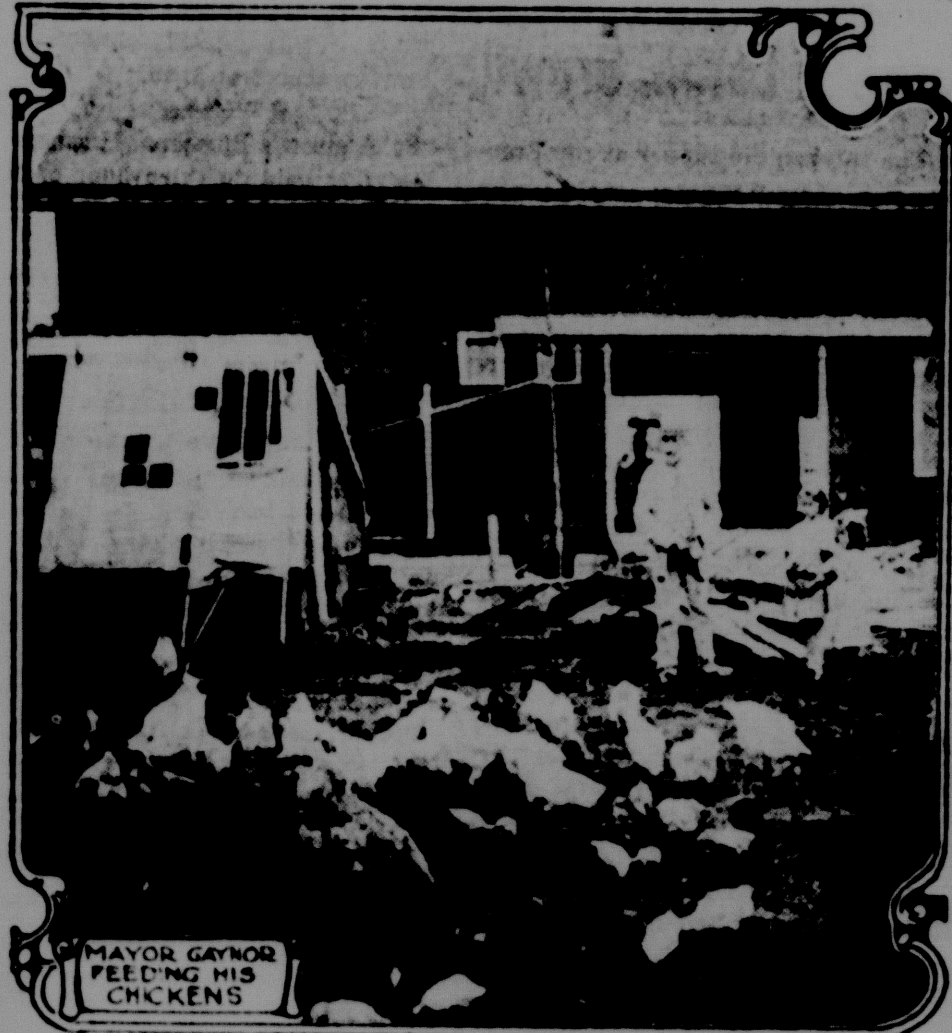

He does big things in a quiet way without fuss or foolishness, and, what is even more novel, he does them with out any thought of future reward beyond what he has already received.

has done, he has brought the city's government back to Jeffersonian simplicity.

In former days the door to the mayor's office was a portal through which only the mighty might pass. Now it is open to every citizen. The weak and the poor and the oppressed are as welcome as the rich. Mr. Gaynor sees three or four times as many people at his office every day as were received by his predecessor. No one who has a reasonable excuse for seeing him is denied admittance, and no one goes away unsatisfied. To those with complaints of injustice—and there were many of them at first, but their number is constantly decreasing under the general correction of abuses—the mayor inclines a sympathetic ear, and such action as is needed is taken in the vigorous Gaynor fashion.

The complaint of two peaceable citizens who had been roughly handled by special officers without any reason led to an investigation which developed the fact that there were 4,000 special policemen in New York who, though armed with full police powers, were employed by firms and corporations. They naturally took orders from those who paid them their wages without regard to the rights of the people with whom they interfered. Frequently they went beyond the law. The result of this discovery was that by the mayor's order all of these special officers were immediately stripped of their authority.

Early one morning as a merchant was walking downtown to open his store he said something that annoyed

beyond the satisfaction which comes from a work well done. His judgments are based on what he believes to be right, and only that. He is such an unusual mayor that New Yorkers didn't quite know what to think of him at first, but since they have had an opportunity to watch and study him they have come to love him, in much the same way that Lincoln was loved. He is often spoken of, in fact, as a second emancipator, and not without reason, for, to a much greater extent than even the most optimistic citizen dared hope for up to a year or two ago, he has freed New York from the fetters of "the System."

He doesn't look a great deal like Lincoln—this spare, quiet, gray man of medium height—but he's of Lincolnian stature in other ways. He makes the same appeal to the popular imagination, and he stands for the same thing that Lincoln typified—trust in the Almighty and in the Almighty's people. And he has a whole lot of old-fashioned notions, of the kind that go with rag carpets and husking bees and harvest home festivals.

In the two years that he has occupied the city hall he has done so many things which New Yorkers had come to regard as impossible that the telling of them would make a story as long as the moral law, which comparison, it may be said, is no more figure of speech. For one thing, and perhaps it is really the biggest thing he a policeman and was arrested on a charge of spitting on the sidewalk and dragged off to court. Not only was he denied bail, but the police refused to allow him to communicate with his clerks or send them the keys to the store. When his case finally was reached he was dismissed in short order, but it was nearly noon before he got to his store, where sixteen clerks were waiting around outside of the locked doors, not knowing what had happened. As a consequence of this and other similar injustices, which were brought to the mayor's attention, the police were instructed that instead of making arrests for minor offenses, in cases where the defendant could establish his identity and residence they must merely serve him with a summons, directing him to appear in court at a reasonable hour the next day. The working out of this system showed a decrease last year of 60,000 useless arrests for trivial causes.

These are merely illustrations of the simple, but effective, methods through which Mayor Gaynor is re-establishing the rights of the citizen, which he holds to be paramount and sacred, so long as he keeps within the law, and even when he goes beyond the law he has certain rights which must be respected. The people have learned that under his administration every citizen will get a square deal—nothing more and nothing less, no matter what his station.

LONG ON CHIEFS

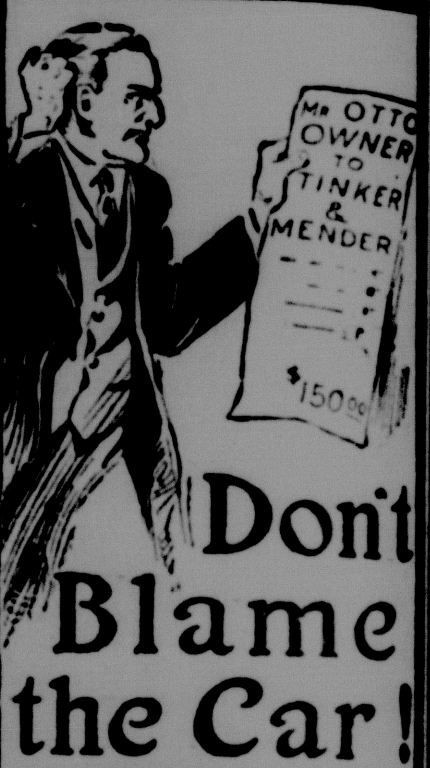

Columbus Police Squabble May Go Into Courts.

Columbus, O., March 16.—Columbus now has two chiefs of police. Chief of Police Carter, Republican, was re-instated as head of the department by the civil service commission and Harry E. French, who has been acting chief, was made chief by Mayor Karb. Democrat, in a written appointment, made about an hour before the civil service commission findings were given out.

This new move on the part of the Karb administration is taken to indicate that the mayor will make Carter fight to get back as head of the police department. It is believed that Carter will now have to seek his reinstatement through a court injunction.

The civil service commission in their report said that the charges preferred against Carter by Mayor Karb had not been sustained, but that the evidence showed that the chief had been guilty of errors of judgment and docked him his pay from the date of suspension to the date of reinstatement.

TIME TO CONSIDER THE OILING OF STREETS

Circleville Asking for Sealed Bids on 33,000 Gallons of Street Oil—Early Action Expected in This City, Where Application of Oil Has Proven a Success.

The time for oiling streets will soon be at hand, and so far nothing has been done in this city toward oiling early in order to prevent the dust from causing weeks of annoyance before a coat of oil is applied to keep down the unhealthy dust.

Over in Circleville, the director of public service has advertised for sealed bids for furnishing Circleville with 33,000 gallons of oil suitable for preserving the surface of the streets and keeping the dust down, and the bids to be accompanied by a sample of the oil and a statement of what it contains, the oil to be delivered f. o. b. at Circleville between the 10th and 25th days of April.

In addition to the above the successful bidder must furnish a man at least two days to direct the application of the oil, and must furnish two tank wagons equipped with sprinkling device to be used by the city in applying the oil.

Bids are also asked for sprinkling certain streets with water during the summer season.

Last year Washington used between 65,000 and 80,000 gallons of oil for street sprinkling purposes, paying in excess of what it could have been purchased for if the entire amount had been purchased as a whole instead of in car-load lots and by various individuals.

Under the law sprinkling ordinances can be passed, assessing the cost against the property owners, and the cost being less than sprinkling with water, and the method more satisfactory, very little protest can be offered against ordinances covering the sprinkling of all principal streets of the city.

Where sprinkling was done last year the streets will not require as much oil as they did last, and the cost will consequently be much cheaper, it is claimed.

It is thought that some action will be taken on the sprinkling question at the next meeting of the local council, and if so the sprinkling will not be delayed until late as the case was last year.

Sad Love Affair Ends in Death

Miss Loretta Atwell, 18, of Highland county, committed suicide in Sardinia one evening this week, drinking a half ounce of carbolic acid while walking on the street in company with a young man of the village.

The girl had been betrayed by one Jack Sroufe, of Winchester, it is alleged, and when Sroufe left the neighborhood she decided to end her life and did so accordingly.

Equipping Troops For Field Service

Lieutenant Colonel Hale, of the 17th U. S. Infantry, says the Lancaster Eagle, "has informed the officers of the local company of National Guards that they may expect a call to arms at any moment."

"The company has been equipped with the latest field service uniforms, new blankets, new shelter tents and other equipment that they will probably need in the tropics. Although little is being said, like equipment is being rushed from the arsenals to all the National Guard regiments in the state. The proficiency of the Seventh regiment, of which the Lancaster company is a part was instrumental in getting them their new equipment before many of the other regiments."

"There are about five or six vacancies in the local company which the recruiting officer has been ordered to fill at once. The recruiting officer will be at the armory next Monday night, March 18th to enlist and examine whoever applies."

Turned Down Ancient Lover

Mrs. Ella Williams, a comely widow of 50 years, who was recently arrested upon a charge of forging the name of Al Bateman to a check for $1,000, has been found not guilty. Both parties are from Madison county.

Bateman is an octogenarian grass widower of London, and in the hearing it developed that he had given Mrs. Williams the pen with which to sign the note, and had told her to sign it. Mrs. Williams testified that she had borrowed the money in order to send her son to a sanitarium, and that Bateman, after allowing the note drawn, had proposed that she move to his farm and permit him to live there, too. This was refused and the refusal made the man angry and he sought revenge.

GLORIOUS NEWS

It's an excellent remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Will be Candidate For Re-election

Hon. C. A. Reid will be a candidate on the Republican ticket for nomination and re-election as representative from Fayette county to the General Assembly, and indications are that he will have no opposition for the nomination.

Two years ago Mr. Reid was chosen by a large majority, and has fully demonstrated his ability to represent Fayette in the legislature.

Another Bill Introduced by Post

Congressman J. D. Post on March 12th introduced a bill in the House of Representatives to constitute Circleville, Ohio, a port of delivery in the customs collection district of New Orleans, La.

The bill, which was referred to the Ways and Means committee and ordered printed, is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That Circleville, in the State of Ohio, be, and is hereby, constituted a subport of entry and subordinate to the port of Columbus, in said State, and that the provisions of the seventh section of the Act approved June tenth, eighteen hundred and eighty, relating to the immediate transportation of dutiable merchandise, be, and the same are hereby, extended to the said subport."

Will Bond City To Tide Crisis

The council of Hillsboro is seriously considering the advisability of submitting a bond issue to the citizens for their approval or rejection, in order to raise sufficient funds to conduct the affairs of the city until more money is secured from the tax collection, the town being some $10,000 short of enough money to carry on the municipal affairs.

If the bond issue is turned down the city council will apply for State aid, and if the state deems it necessary for Hillsboro to have more funds an additional tax levy will be made. The city dads are still puzzling over what method to adopt.

Child Husband Leaves Aged Bride

Because his wife required that he secure a position and get busy, Delmar Crane, aged 20 years, who was married to Mrs. Rosella Witham, aged 71, of Warren county, left his aged bride a few days ago and has not returned.

At the time of the marriage it is said the woman gave her child husband the sum of $500 as a wedding present.

REPELS ATTACK OF DEATH.

"Five years ago two doctors told me I had only two years to live." This startling statement was made by Stillman Green, Malachite, Col. "They told me I would die with consumption. It was up to me then to try the best lung medicine and I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery. It was well I did, for today I am working and believe I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure that has cheated the grave of another victim." It's folly to suffer with coughs, colds or other throat and lung troubles now. Take the cure that's safest. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Blackmer & Tanquary.

Combination Wire And Picket Fence

PRACTICAL, DURABLE, STRONG AND CHEAP

There is no fence made that compares with the above for strength, neatness and durability, and it is practical for all purposes.

It is made of good oak pickets 5-8x2 four feet high, pointed and painted, five double strands of the best galvanized wire, woven with a continuous twist, two-inch mesh. It is by far the cheapest fence on the market, all things considered. The woven wire fence had its day. People are finding out that it only lasts from two to four or five years, and they are coming back to the above fence because it lasts five or six times as long as the woven wire. This we can prove at Ironton.

TWO BASE BALL TEAMS FOR OUR OWN CITY

The Shoe Factory Team Will Be There With Big Betterments in Park and Team.

THE ATHLETICS ARE ORGANIZED

New Team Has Rented the Old Fair Grounds and Will Build Stand, Fences and Playing Field—Post Season Series for Championship a Possibility.

Washington people devoted to the game of base ball—in ordinary and understandable language the baseball fans and bugs who for years have hungered and thirsted too for a chance to do some real genuine whole-souled rootin'—are promised, the coming season, a rare opportunity to exercise their peculiar talents.

In the first place the Shoe Factory team which staged so many classy games last year will be in the field the coming season, with both feet—bigger and better than ever.

The team will be measurably strengthened and run on a much more business-like method.

The Millwood park will be fenced and accommodation provided for spectators, the diamond and out-field we are promised will be thoroughly overhauled and put in ship-shape.

where lightning base ball will be possible.

Last season this team played some remarkably good games considering the temporary character of its quarters.

The great national game had remained dead in Washington for years until the shoe factory boys broke the ice and blossomed forth with a real ball team.

The experiment proved successful. The people of Washington demonstrated by the attendance at the games that they were ready to patronize, at least with that degree of liberality which meant support, a real local ball team.

Having demonstrated that good base ball is popular in Washington and that our fans will support a team the organization will now give to its patrons a park more in keeping with the team and one which will meet the requirements of the public.

But the shoe factory team is not going to furnish all the amusement with the bat and horsehide the coming season.

Some of the real, live, hustling athletes have banded themselves together and are to be known collectively, during the ball-playing season at least as The Washington Athletic Society. The organization has been joined by one or two crack-jack ball players from out of town. The main object and purpose of the organization is a ball team to be known as the Athletics (sounds well doesn't it—say it again THE WASHINGTON ATHLETICS.)

They have rented the old fair grounds and will, as soon as weather conditions permit, put in a good grand stand and lay out a good diamond and outfield which will be just about right for speedy ball tossers to gambol about on chasing the flying pellet or punloining the sacks in rapid succession.

What? From nothing to two good ball teams and two good parks in two short years.

That's going some. And Washington fans will surely furnish the patronage which means life to the game.

Looks something like a city league and post-season series for the city championship in 1912.

MAJOR OPERATION

Miss Ida Barr, of Greenfield, underwent a major operation at the Robson hospital Friday. Miss Barr has been in a serious condition for some time. She came through the operation nicely and today is thought to be doing as well as possible. Dr. Hodson performed the operation, assisted by Drs. Rowe and Jenkins.

Miss Barr's brother, Mr. Will Barr, accompanied her to the hospital.

FIRST HIGH SILK HAT

It was in January, 1797, that the first high silk hat was seen upon a man's head. The London Times in its issue of Jan. 16 of that year related the event as follows:

"John Hetherington, mercer in the Strand, was arraigned before the lord mayor, who found him guilty of disorderly conduct and inciting to riot and imposed a fine of £200. Mr. Hetherington, with the evident intention of frightening the people, appeared in the public street wearing a strange high hat covered with very glossy silk the luster of which dazzled the sight. According to the testimony of the constables, several women fainted at the sight, children screamed with fright, the panic-stricken crowd fled and one of the sons of Mr. Thomas Currier was thrown down in the excitement and broke his arm."

HUNTS DAILY, THOUGH 103

Seventy-eight years ago Donald Davis, a native of West Royalston, Mass., was dropped from the Boston police force on the advice of a physician, who said that he had but a year to live and that if he wanted to die at home he had better return there at once. Mr. Davis celebrated his 103rd birthday the other day, and he maintains that he is hardly beginning to feel old. He goes almost daily with his gun into the woods and seldom comes back without game. His wife, whom he married in 1842, still presides over his household at the age of 95 years.

HAS A MUSICAL HEART

A doctor in Vienna has a novel female patient. Since the age of 4 the woman has suffered from palpitation. One day she heard a clear and musical sound, which appeared to come from her chest. After a while this noise could be heard by people close by, and now the sound is so marked as to be heard at quite a distance. The heart gives out only two notes, which are described as "monotonous, but with a certain charm."

FAMILY OF OCTOGENARIANS

A small town in Huntingdonshire, England, has an odd claim to distinction. In the Nickerson family, the oldest in the village, are five octogenarians and old age pensioners. The old people's ages range from eighty-six to eighty. They have lived all their lives in their native village, as did their parents before them.

CREMATIONS IN SCOTLAND

Cremation is making but slow progress in Scotland, judging by the annual report of the Scottish Burial Reform and Cremation society. During the year 35 cremations have been carried out at Maryhill, Glasgow, compared with 26 in the previous year, making a total since the opening of the crematorium of 376.

THOUSAND-YEAR-OLD BREAD

During recent excavations at Ljunga, in Sweden, a loaf was discovered which must be quite 1,000 years old. It has been carefully examined and has been found to consist of pea-flour and the bark of the fir tree. The latter is nothing unusual, for during many times of sore hardship the Swedish peasantry have had to fall back upon bark bread, made simply from the bark of the trees. There are still living old men and women in remote parts of Sweden who can remember eating bark bread in the hard days of their youth.

WEDDED PROFANITY

One often finds euphony existing in the names of couples who go to the altar, but rarely to the extent of that recorded in a Clocnet paper, which chronicles the marriage of Charles B. Gosh and Annie B. Damm under the caption of "Gosh-Damm." The good gentleman of the cloth who performed the ceremony doubtless had a hard task but, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press, he bravely overcame the difficulty by coughing violently every time he was called to pronounce the bride's name.

MAIL BAGS OF RULERS

The mail bag at the Vatican probably contains the largest number of letters that are addressed to any single person or institution. Emperor William of Germany comes next with an average of 7,500 letters a day. Then comes the president of the United States with an average of 5,000 letters. The letters of the king of England have dwindled down to 2,500 a day, about one-third the number received by his father. The mail of the czar of Russia, is comparatively small, being only about 500 a day.

ROBINS ARE DRUNKARDS

Robins in Georgia have acquired habits of insobriety. The "bird licker" that intoxicates them is believed to be obtained from China berries, which grow in profusion there. Many of the robins that have been found in a "drunken" condition have been watched during the time of their stupefaction, watchers being careful to keep cats at a safe distance, and it has been observed that in a few hours the birds revive and immediately go back to the China berry trees.

strain through which it passed. There was a heavy downpour of rain, which makes the mountain section almost impassable. Hence the work of trailing the other assassins and those implicated in the murder of the judiciary will be somewhat impeded.

That the Allen gang and their friends are not leaving anything undone to prevent capture is shown by the crippling of the telephone and telegraph systems. The insulators were broken by bullets from rifles and pistols and there is only one phone wire working out of Hillsville.

New Judge on Bench. Judge Walter Staples of Roanoke, who ascended the bench of the circuit court to hold the remainder of the March term, summoned a special grand jury, which convened this morning, to convict the murderers of Judge Maske, Commonwealth Attorney W. M. Foster and Sheriff Webb. Judge Staples, accompanied by Attorney General Samuel W. Williams, arrived in Hillsville. A large crowd gathered in the courtroom, but there was the least of order.

Judge Staples appointed S. Floyd Landreth of Galax as special attorney to the commonwealth. In a crude cell in the little Carroll county jail Floyd Allen, with his head resting on the arm of his son Victor, who guarded him all through the day and night, is slowly dying.

"Old Floyd Allen ain't never been sent to no prison yet," declared the would-be suicide and murderer, as the surgeon dressed the wound in his throat, "and there ain't no judge or sheriff what again to send him there now. The boys fit like hell and I hope they'll all get away. One them boys got me, but I'll never go to no prison. The Alens is all fighters. I reckon as how I've been pretty free with my gun, and when I gets away I'll be free, 's' it ain't. The boys is a countin' back on me, but if they don't come I'll never go to no prison alive."

Mr. Earl Barnett stepped on a nail Friday, causing a very painful wound, although no serious results are anticipated. However he is temporarily at home.

BIG RETURN FROM DOLLAR

For a dollar given to a stranger eight years ago Joseph Clair, a Philadelphia druggist, may receive an estate of over $125,000. Eight years ago a man who was evidently suffering from the effects of the night before came into the drug store and told Clair that he was up against it, had spent his last cent and needed enough to get a bite to eat. He asked for a quarter.

After a short talk Clair gave the man a dollar and the stranger departed with the remark: "You'll never regret this, young man. It will be richly repaid."

Clair forgot the incident. Five years ago the man again came into the store and recalling the dollar loan made the druggist a present of a handsome gold-headed cane. Clair did not forget the matter so quickly then, but he was thoroughly surprised a few days ago when he received a letter from a firm of lawyers in Rockdale, Wyo., saying that Joseph Waters, a wealthy rancher near that city, had left his entire property, valued at over $125,000, to him.

TRAVELER'S MISTAKE

Will Chinese customs and traditions change with the new regime? If they do travel in the Celestial empire will be deprived of much of its pleasures, which are sometimes attended with excitement, not to say danger. Two Englishmen traveling in Ning-Po on a visit to a Chinese official during the autumn had, to say the least, a diverting time. They were being carried in sedan chairs, and feeling the atmosphere oppressive asked the bearers to give them a little fresh air by opening the roof. The men put the request with stolid indifference, so the travelers decided to open the roof themselves. As they approached the city they found that they were the objects of considerable attention. A crowd of 500 surrounded the chairs, and soon it increased to 2,000, the people uttering menacing cries. Happily nothing worse happened. When they reached their destination their host received them with astonishment. "Good gracious," said he, "what have you done? Only condemned criminals here travel in an open chair!"

STOMACH FULL OF TACKS

Abraham Leconey, a shoemaker at Delanco, N. J., was taken to a Philadelphia hospital the other day for a "tack-lifting" operation upon which physicians are relying to save his life. For nearly a year Leconey has been suffering from stomach ache. All the home remedies failed to relieve him, and the puzzled doctors proposed an X-ray examination. The spot-light revealed about 100 brass tacks sticking in the walls of the shoemaker's stomach. He admitted that for several years he had used his mouth for a temporary tack box while at work at his bench, as shoemakers do, and said he remembered swallowing a good many during the last ten years. Surgeons say one section of Leconey's stomach has more tacks in it than the sole of a boot.

A remarkable old age pension record has been established by a family in Norfolk, England. They comprise seven brothers and sisters, all of whom are receiving old age pensions. The eldest of the seven is eighty and the youngest seventy-one. Their united ages total 530 years.

Pickaway Adds Another Murder to Her Long List

Still another murder was added to the long list of tragedies which have taken place in Pickaway county the past two years, when W. A. Potter shot and killed George Martin, as Martin stood on the steps of Potter's divorced wife's home.

"Say your prayers for I am going to kill you" are the words Potter addressed to Martin as Martin stepped from the house. "I cannot pray" expostulated Martin, and as he spoke the words Potter fired three shots in quick succession and Martin fell lifeless at his feet.

Potter is 46 years of age and Martin was a veteran of the Civil War. Potter was divorced from his wife some time ago, and his jealousy was aroused by reports that Martin was a too frequent visitor at the home of his divorced wife, and he went to the place with the intention of slaying the man.

After the murder he went at once to the mayor's office and gave himself up, telling the mayor that he had killed Martin and had gone to the place with that intention.

Adjudged Insane Had Made Threats

Harve Knisely, aged 39 years, single, a resident of the Selden neighborhood, was tried before Judge Patton Saturday morning, on a charge of insanity, was found suffering from mental weakness and ordered committed to the State hospital for the feeble minded. He was locked up in the county jail and will be taken to the hospital Monday.

Knisely labored under the hallucination that everyone was an enemy and regarded him with suspicion. He had made threats of killing several children and was regarded as dangerous.

The plot of the play contains one of the strongest morals ever produced on the stage. MICE IN THE GAS MAIN

The strange home of a family of mice was discovered during the removal of an old gas main at Sunderland, England, recently, when a mouse was seen to run out at the end of the pipe. The pipe was then broken up, and in the interior was found a nest containing six young mice. That the animals could exist in a pipe which had gas passing through it is regarded as remarkable, but the fact that there was a fracture in the pipe may in some degree explain the mystery.

This photograph depicts one of the most curious boats that has ever ridden the waters. It is the invention of a retired captain of the American navy, who claims that it possesses all sorts of remarkable advantages over the ordinary screw-propelled vessel. The boat suggests a steamroller or a couple of tool-sheds and a pair of garden-rollers, and although it presents a somewhat ungainly picture it does effectually what is claimed for it.

BEETLES GROW MUSHROOMS

Scientists have known of mushroom growing ants for a long time and it was generally believed that the ant was the only insect possessing sufficient intelligence to make a successful mushroom farmer. Prof. J. Bouvier, the French entomologist, has found that a certain wood boring beetle known as the Horticola is as familiar with mushroom cultivation for home consumption as the ant. Professor Bouvier discovered that the beetles bore holes in wood and half fill them with a prepared fungus, which makes an ideal mushroom bed. The garden is carefully spawned and tended, and in course of time the mushrooms appear. In this way the beetle provides itself with a food sufficiently tender for its feeble jaws.

Wreck Of Maine Reposes In the Sea

Father Chadwick Pronounces
Eulogy From Havana Dock.

Havana, March 16.—The doors of the city hall were opened to the public and great crowds passed reverently by the spot where the bodies of the victims of the Maine were lying in state. A guard of honor stood about the caskets, which were covered with black cloth.

All the government departments contributed flowers and these, with those supplied by the Spanish war veterans, the members of the house of representatives and individuals, covered the deck of the wreck completely and floated over her when she was sent down for a final resting place this afternoon.

Father Chadwick, who was the chaplain of the Maine when she went down, delivered a funeral eulogy at the wharf before the wreck started for sea, where it was sunk in 600 feet of water.

duced incalculable inconvenience and loss and in some parts actual suffering, although happily it had not been attended by any disorder. Considering the extent of the strike, the earnings and the number of people directly and indirectly affected by the dispute, the premier said it became daily a more serious menace to the well being of the country. Mr. Aquith went on to say that the government had done all in its power to arrive at a settlement by some agreement between the parties to the strike but had come to the conclusion, with great regret, that this was impossible and that other measures must therefore be taken.

The premier then stated that the government would ask parliament for a legislative declaration that a reasonable minimum wage, accompanied by adequate safeguards for the protection of the employers, should be the statutory condition of the employment of people engaged in work underground in coal mining. As regards the important question as to how such a minimum should be ascertained in any particular area, the premier while not pledging the government to any precise form of machinery, indicated that the schedule of minimum wages should be locally fixed by a joint board in each district, consisting of representatives of the employers and the employees, with a neutral independent chairman to be selected by the parties themselves, or if necessary, by the government.

Miners Prefer Charges

Tom Lewis Will Appear Before Fifth District Convention.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 16.—The Fifth Ohio subdistrict miners' convention heard charges preferred by some of the locals against Tom Lewis, former national president. The testimony was taken by stenographer and officials refused to give out its nature. Lewis was not on hand, but is coming to face the convention.

USES OF FINGER PRINTS

In the Argentine Republic the identification cards of policemen, coachmen, cab drivers, commissionaires and servants have since 1896 borne their finger-prints. Upon all passports and bank receipts for deposits the imprint of the thumb must be made at the time of delivery. In Roumania, since 1902, the thumb-print has been substituted for the cross made instead of signature by persons who cannot write. In the Philippine Islands those who cannot write are not obliged to be identified by witnesses at savings banks, but merely have to make their mark with their thumb. The same system has been used in the banks of Bengal for fifty years. In France, to put an end to the fraud of enlistment, desertion and re-enlistment for the bounty paid in the Foreign Legion, every man's finger prints are taken and kept on file.

Anderson Has a New Proposal For Con-Con

Anderson Gets Into Initiative and Referendum Game.

Columbus, O., March 16.—That delegates in the constitutional convention who are not allied with the radical group, but strongly favor the initiative and referendum, must take hold to prevent the defeat of the proposition either in the convention or at the polls, was an opinion expressed by Dr. S. D. Fess, an I. and R. advocate. Other delegates pointed to the liquor license fight as proof of the fact that neither radicals nor conservatives can dominate and both must give way to middle-way men.

Delegate Anderson prepared a substitute for the Crosser proposal which eliminates the direct initiative feature (which means ignoring of the general assembly), against which most strenuous objection is being made. He would have the legislative initiative under the Wisconsin plan on petition of 4 per cent of the electors. He does not regard the percentages as of as much importance as the safeguarding of the principle. "My proposal is a safeguarded initiative and referendum," said Mr. Anderson. "It will go over, too, if they don't jockey me out of presenting it."

LIVING PREACHER IS CARRIED IN COFFIN

Archdeacon Rehearses His Funeral in the Presence of His Congregation.

London.—One of the most astounding ceremonies ever witnessed in the history of the Church of England was presented by the Venerable Archdeacon Colley for the "edification" of his parishioners in the Church of St. Michael's and All Angels, at Stockton, Warwickshire.

At the close of an evening service the archdeacon stepped into the coffin in which he means to be buried and had himself carried around the church in full view of the congregation. After the sermon, which was preached on the text: "Set Thy House in Order," the eccentric archdeacon amazed his hearers by saying: "Not feeling that I am getting younger every day I have had my coffin—which many of you for some years have known has been made for me—brought over from the rectory music room, and now is before you in the chapel.

"On May 1, 1904, I bequeathed my body to the University of Birmingham for medical students' use, and to be cut up in the interests of anatomical and surgical science when I have done with it."

Then calling for his "bearers," he stepped, still clad in full canonicals, into the coffin, which stood on end, and the glass cover was fixed in front of him.

Carried only breast high by the four bearers, so that all might see, the coffin archdeacon was gravely borne up and down the church.

As it passed seat after seat the startled parishioners gazed spellbound at the spectacle. Some of them were so overcome that they sobbed; others knowing their rector's amiable idiosyncrasies, giggled half hysterically, while others, shocked by the mockery of death filed from the church.

The extraordinary proceedings closed with the benediction in the customary form, and the congregation filed out, obviously relieved from a strain that was to most of them well-nigh unbearable.

Find Baby's Skeleton.

Massillon, O., March 16.—The skeleton of a 3-year-old child, and near it a pair of shoes, the handles of a coffin and a plate engraved "To Our Darling," were found under a pile of hay in an abandoned barn at Navarre, south of here. There is no clew as to how it came to be there.

The Law of The Land Says: TREES MUST BE SPRAYED BEFORE APRIL 30.

No argument is needed. It's simply a case of doctor the trees or pay a fine in no case less than $25.00. Delay will be useless, and, if carried too far, will be expensive. The State has taken a hand in the fight to prevent and cure the diseases that are devastating the Ohio orchards. Universal compliance with the law will accomplish wonders.

Wreck Of Maine Reposes In the Sea

Eulogy From Havana Dock.

Havana, March 16.—The doors of the city hall were opened to the public and great crowds passed reverently by the spot where the bodies of the victims of the Maine were lying in state. A guard of honor stood about the caskets, which were covered with black cloth.

All the government departments contributed flowers and these, with those supplied by the Spanish war veterans, the members of the house of representatives and individuals, covered the deck of the wreck completely and floated over her when she was sent down for a final resting place this afternoon.

Father Chadwick, who was the chaplain of the Maine when she went down, delivered a funeral eulogy at the wharf before the wreck started for sea, where it was sunk in 3,600 feet of water.
